

REFLECTION ON A SEMESTER OF READING AND WRITING

In a letter to me, just like you did at the start of the year, please address the following questions. You can answer them in an order that makes sense to you. Please link to posts that you are discussing and that show evidence of the skills you are talking about.

Overall Reflection

- What did you not know at the beginning of the semester that you know now because of your reading, writing and thinking in this course? You can talk about more than one thing if you wish.
- How would you characterize yourself as a reader and writer? (As a reader, I am... As a writer, I am...)

Writing

- Has your approach to writing changed during this course? If yes how? If no, why not?
- Have your attitudes about writing changed this semester? If yes how? If no, why not?
- What piece of writing are you most proud of? Why?

Reading

- Has your approach to reading changed during this course? If yes, how? If no, why not?
- Have your attitudes about reading changed this semester? If yes, how? If no, why not?
- What was your favorite short or long piece you read this semester and why?

Goals

- How do you feel you performed in this class? Give me specific examples.
- What would you do differently if you took the class again?
- What are your goals for next semester?
- What suggestions do you have for improving the class?
